

I have been on Indiana's Do Not Call list for the past 6 months. I can't believe the difference it has made in the number of phone calls I have. Tele-marketers would call anytime from 7:00am to 11:00pm my time. Now considering that my spouse and myself work the evening shift we were constantly being awakened. It was so bad that we would turn all of the ringers off and the answering machine down to where we couldn't hear it. I have ask many times to be put on their do not call list and it never works. They actually get rude with me because I would ask. This is my phone and if I want buy something I will call them. If I want to give to their charity then I would do so. I don't need to be harrassed in my own home. Now I hear the FCC wants to change the rules. Anybody I did business with in the past I would still be doing business with if that is what I wanted. Let them send me a letter. I don't need nor do I want them calling me. What I do want is to maintain my privacy in my home with the telephone that I pay for. I feel that is not only a priviledge but a Right.
